Notice of Jewish Community Centre Annual Meeting

Sunday, October 18 at 10 a.m.

The entire Jewish community is invited to attend the Annual General Meeting of the Jewish Community Centre which will be held on Sunday, October 18, 1981, 10 a.m., in the Assembly Hall of the Jewish Community Centre. The purpose of this meeting is to elect Directors and to transact such other business as shall properly come before the meeting.

Certificates of Merit will be presented to Morley Goldfield, Roslyn Gershon, Ben Dworkin, Morris Presser and Elliot Levitan in recognition of their contribution to Centre activities. Certification of distinguished service will also be presented to Bea Roodman, Abe Nadrich, Reg Hewitt, Aurel Dumoulin and Janus Jacobsen for their years of dedicated service as J.C.C. Staff members.

Relatives and friends are cordially invited to attend the presentation.

The Nominating Committee proposes the names of the following members for the Board: Barry Ages, Bryna Cohen, Barry Davis, Ben Dworkin, Abe Engel, A.J. Freiman, Malcolm Glube, Roslyn Gershon, Morley Goldfield, Lawrence Greenberg Jr., Stephen Greenberg, Lawrence Greenspon, Carol Kassie, Elliot Levitan, Ronald Prehogan, Norman Potelchin, Mark Resnick, Morton Ross, William Shenkman, Sol Shmelzer, Flora Silverman, Norman Slover, David Slipacoff, Arnon Vered and Joel Zagerman.

The Past Presidents of the organization who are Bernard M. Alexandor, Q.C., Hyman Soloway, Q.C., Dr. Nathan Schechter, Irving Rivers, Stephen Victor and Saul Ross are automatically members of the Board.

Additional nominations for Directors may be made by any member up to three days prior to the date fixed for the Annual Meeting, by mailing same to the Secretary at 151 Chapel Street. All nominations must be in writing and signed by the nominees.

The By-Laws further provide that the Directors, at their first meeting following the Annual Meeting, shall elect a President, two Vice Presidents, a Treasurer, an Honorary Secretary, and such other Officers as they may deem advisable.

Light refreshments will be provided following the elections.

Accelerate Hillel Lodge Campaign after Yom Tov

Over $80,000 has been raised by Hillel Lodge in its current campaign to retire an accumulated debt of $150,000.

William Grossman, Chairman of the Appeal, who announced the figures, says he is encouraged by the generous response to date but cannot let up until the full amount required is in hand.

Although well over six hundred donations have already been received, Mr. Grossman and his associates are determined to see every prospect possible before they call the drive to a halt. Interest charges on borrowings are a serious drain on the Lodge's resources and the sooner the goal is reached the sooner the financial viability of the Lodge will be assured.

Contributions are tax exempt and will gladly be accepted at 125 Wurtemburg Street, Ottawa, K1N 8L9, telephone 236-7132.

Emek Hephher saga to be recalled on Oct. 27

An event of historic importance which occurred in 1927 and changed the course of history in world Jewish striving to establish a national homeland, will be marked at the 1981 Ottawa Negev Dinner honouring Solicitor General Bob Kaplan, to be held at the Jewish Community Centre on Tuesday, October 27.

In 1927, Menachem M. Ussishkin, the world head of Keren Kayemeth Le'Israel and a leading figure in the Zionist movement, visited the Zionist Leaders, Archie and Lillian Freiman in Ottawa. He urged them to encourage Canadian Jewry to undertake the largest land redemption project ever envisioned in Palestine — the clearance of 40,000 dunam of land in the very heart of the Yishuv — a region known as Emek Hephher. Later that year, at a National Zionist Convention in Winnipeg, the unheard of sum of $1,000,000 was pledged towards Emek Hephher, making it possible for thousands of new settlers to plant their lives there.

To inaugurate the national celebrations of its 80th Anniversary, and to commemorate their turning point in the history of building of the Jewish homeland, the Jewish National Fund, at the dinner honouring Bob Kaplan, will make a special presentation to Lawrence Freiman, son of the late A.J. and Lillian Freiman, as a mark of respect and recognition of their outstanding leadership contribution.

This fundraising event has already motivated the participation of a major part of the Ottawa Jewish Community. Proceeds of this dinner will help further JNF's ongoing work of afforestation, land reclamation and road building, and in particular contribute to "Galil Canada", JNF's newest and most vital undertaking.

The goal of this overall plan of the Keren Kayemeth Le'Israel is to build the infrastructure for 33 new agro-industrial settlements in the Galil, a region which is critical to the economic development and survival of the State of Israel.

Jack Krane named General Chairman U.J.A. Campaign

Joseph Lieff, President of the Jewish Community Council has announced the appointment of Jack Krane as General Chairman of the 1982 United Jewish Appeal. He succeeds to the post held by Lorry Greenberg for the past two years.

As General Chairman, Mr. Krane assumes overall responsibility for the major fundraising drive in the Jewish community each year. Concentrated during the months of March, April and May, the United Jewish Appeal raises gift dollars for beneficiary agencies in Ottawa, in Canada and in Israel. Some $2,250,000 was raised for this purpose in the spring of 1981.

Although the Campaign will not be officially launched until the early part of next year, a great deal of organizational work is necessary before the actual fund-raising begins. Well over 500 volunteers have to be recruited, a campaign plan developed and able people found to head the various divisions into which the campaign is organized.

That process has already begun and is proceeding at a highly satisfactory rate. Chairman Krane has great confidence in the community and in the commitment of the campaign volunteers. He recognizes that the United Jewish Appeal will be a challenge this year but believes that the community can meet the test.

Calling him "the right man for the job at this time", Joseph Lieff said that the Jewish community is grateful to Mr. Krane for taking on the leadership of the drive. "He is a very busy man," Mr. Lieff continued "but is willing to devote the time and effort needed to do an effective job."

Born in Ottawa, the son of Leah and Moses Krantzberg who taught and was principal of the Ottawa Talmud Torah, Jack grew up in lowertown and attended Lisgar Collegiate.

During World War II, he was a Flying Officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, and served as a Wireless Air Gunner overseas.

After the war ended, he went into the retail business in Vancouver. In 1950, he moved to Ottawa and established the Kiddie-Kobbler operation which has grown into a national chain of franchised stores.

Recognized and respected by the footwear trade industry in Canada, he is a Director of the Savage Shoe Company, the largest children's shoe manufacturing company in Canada.

Mr. Krane has been active in the United Jewish Appeal Campaign for over ten years. During that time he held a number of posts including the chairmanship of the Retail Division. As Deputy General Chairman in 1981, he had supervisory responsibility for the business and professional divisions of the campaign.

He is also a member of the Executive Committee of the Jewish Community Council; a Governor of Congregation Beth Shalom; and an active member of Parliament Lodge B'nai B'rith.

1981 J.J.A. Allocations

On Wednesday evening, September 23, the Board of Trustees approved a series of recommendations for the distribution of the funds pledged by members of this community to the 1981 United Jewish Appeal last spring and summer. The details are spelled out in the box to the right of this column.

The allocations are intended to fund beneficiary agency programs and services in Ottawa, in Canada and in Israel during the fiscal year which began July 1 and will end on June 30 next. Beneficiaries receive their subsidies in monthly advances as pledges are collected. In the circumstances, cash flow is critical since a pledge is only a pledge until it is paid.

When you look at the accompanying figures, you will see that the amount available for distribution after deducting campaign costs and a shrinkage allowance is $2,110,000. The United Israel Appeal is the largest single beneficiary with an allocation of $1,072,221, or 50.8%. National services received $151,779, or 7.3%. Local agencies were allotted a total of $831,000 or 39.2%. And finally, a sum of $55,000 or 2.7% was set aside as a contingency reserve plus a payment on a five-year accumulated debt retirement program.

With all that, a good deal of belt-tightening was still necessary since the campaign fell short of its minimum goal by some 6.25%. As a result, all agencies will feel the pinch during the next twelve months as they cut back some services in order to live within their means.

Under the new methodology we now employ, budgeting and planning is a year-round process. No sooner do we end one year than we begin with the next. Even as this column is being written, last year's experience is being evaluated with a view to improving standards and practices. Only in this way can we become more sophisticated in our service delivery system and our administrative procedures in general.

I wish to thank the heads of our beneficiary agencies, the chairmen and members of the individual panels, the members of the Central Committee and our support staff for their co-operation and valuable input. It was an extremely useful learning experience for everyone concerned and we shall build on it as we plan for the future.

Is It Real or Imagined?

At a meeting the other day, we were discussing the ingredients needed for a viable Jewish community. Quite naturally, attention was focused on Jewish education, Jewish values, leadership, social services, adequate funding and the like. Then a gentleman I like and respect caught me off guard when he said that what we have in Ottawa is a kind of "old-boy's network," that newcomers find it hard to break in and that there is no democracy in our communal government.

The man was not born in Ottawa but has lived here for many years. Of all the so-called new arrivals in the last twenty-five years, he is probably the best example of an integrated Ottawa Jew you can imagine. Still, he did say it and I would be the last person to discount his sincerity or his obvious good intentions. Perhaps he was not speaking for himself but for others since he has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

In any event, I wish to assure my friend that I took his charges seriously and want to see if I can do anything about them during my presidency, even if it only means opening up the subject for debate. One or two corrections, however, are necessary before we start.

To begin with, the Constitution of the Jewish Community Council clearly provides opportunities for everyone in the community to stand for office and to vote in the election of officers and trustees each year. There is a well-defined procedure for nominations and elections which we publish in the Bulletin several times before our annual meeting. Unfortunately, few people take advantage of their democratic rights, but that is more an indictment of apathy than it is of the system.

As far as "the old-boy's network" is concerned, I feel it is neither real nor present. No office in this community is closed to anyone who has the commitment and the capacity to serve. Look around you and you will see the young men and women who are in the leadership of our most important organizations and institutions. They are not restricted by birth, geography or economic status. The sad part is that we don't have enough of them: too many people today are unwillingly to assume the responsibilities of community service.

My friend may have a point about newcomers finding it hard to break in. I've heard the charge before. We have a mechanism for welcoming new people but maybe we don't go far enough. On the other hand, breaking in is a two-way street, requiring both parties to meet each other half-way.

Let's open up the subject in the Bulletin. Do we have a problem and if so, what should we do about it? Is it p.r. only or does it go deeper than merely trying to change our image? If things are O.K. from your point of view, I'd like to hear that too. Write to me at 151 Chapel Street. I can't promise we'll publish all the replies but some will appear in print. In any event, some new insights and a breath of fresh air will do us all a lot of good.

Commentary by Cynthia Engel Editor

In our first two columns we had a little fun at the expense of our clergy. We "grizzled" them about sermons and we teased about year-round shul attendance. But at this time of the year when our Rabbis have a particularly high profile and figure so prominently in our lives it seemed opportune to devote this space to them. With no fooling around.

It has been said, tongue-in-cheek, that being a Rabbi is no job for a Jewish boy!, a statement borne out by a tale recently told of 16 diners at a Yom Tov table who, upon being asked by one of their number over dessert and tea, what each expected from his Rabbi, give 16 answers. All different.

A good speaker, said one.
A shoulder in times of trouble, said another.
A P.R. man for the general community, came a third opinion.
An interpreter of laws and customs, a fourth volunteered.
A guide and participant at simchas, stated a fifth.
A leader and teacher of children, replied a sixth.

On and on, until all 16 had voiced 16 varied opinions, no two the same, and all required of the same single individual. (It has been said that two Jews plotting an escape from prison would never make it — they'd have three opinions. Nuff said!)

One wonders, when a man opts to spend his lifetime as the spiritual leader of a congregation, from whence cometh his strength. From The Lord Himself, no doubt, for a man must be made of sterner stuff to attend to this task. While it unquestionably has its golden moments, the job of being a Rabbi is one which carries with it a multitude of constant pressures.

The man who would follow this path must first know to take for his wife a woman fashioned from pure gold, for it is she who will bear the daily, and often nightly, tending to the wants and needs and basic upbringing of their children.

And early on in their own young lives these children must recognize it is the quality rather than the quantity of the time their father can give them, that counts.

For a Rabbi belongs first to his congregation. And he would have it no other way.

His is a life filled with deadlines and duties. He must prepare thought-provoking weekly sermons. (And scintillating bi-monthly Bulletin articles!) He must attend countless meetings. And daven shachrit and mincha and maariv daily. He must visit the sick. And mend marriages. Lead study groups. And comfort, the bereaved. Advise on weddings. Consult on kashruth. Eulogize at funerals. Name the babies.

And that's just the tip of the iceberg. In a single week, in a single day, his own emotions can run the gamut from wonderfully high to woefully low, and all the way back again. And through it all, he must be able to think clearly and advise and counsel with great wisdom.

In this very special community of ours, we are fortunate to be able to support five full synagogue congregations.

That we expect a great deal from the men who devote their whole lives to holding us together and keeping us on the Judaic straight and narrow, is not unreasonable. Our Rabbis are there to share our times of joy, to give support in times of sorrow, and to guide us through all the shadings in between.

That we must recognize no one man can wear 16 — or more — hats simultaneously (including his kippah!) is absolutely necessary.

And so, at this Yom Tov season, a salute to our Rabbis. And to their wonderfully supportive families.

Without these selfless Jewish boys who have chosen to be at the helm of our lives, Judaism would indeed be in dire straits.

Meeting Oct. 22 to plan special home

By Lily Penso

This is the second report on the activities of a group of dedicated parents and friends of developmentally handicapped young people who are pursuing the establishment of a Jewish home. This home would observe Kathruth and Jewish holidays, and in it these young adults could be taught life skills and eventual independent living.

Steps have already been taken to incorporate as a charitable foundation. We are developing a two phase proposal — the first is for a small group home for developmentally handicapped young adults presently living with families and in the community. The second is for a special support home for persons presently residing in institutions in Ontario. Both will provide support and supervision appropriate for the level of functioning of the residents.

To this end, a community information evening is planned on Thursday, October 22, at 8:00 p.m. at Agudath Israel Synagogue. Mrs. Lenore Jones, Co-ordinator of Services for the Developmentally Handicapped for the Ministry of Community & Social Services, Government of Ontario, Jacquelin Holzman Co-ordinator of Special Needs of the Social Planning Council of Ottawa-Carleton, and Mr. Kent Swinburne of the Ottawa & District Association for the Mentally Retarded, will be present. The community is urged to join us and participate in a very important project for our "special" people in this, the International Year of Disabled Persons.

For further information, please contact Lily Penso at 725-1846.

Satellite plans Sukkot

A successful membership brunch was held recently at Beth Shalom West, the satellite facility of Congregation Beth Shalom in western Ottawa. Close to 150 people were present at the cafeteria of Sir John A. McDonald High School, the temporary location of the synagogue, to enjoy a catered breakfast, musical entertainment, children's program, and an address by Rabbi Basil Herring, outlining future plans for the rapidly expanding institution.

Plans for the upcoming Sukkot festival, include an open house family evening at the synagogue's communal sukkah, at the home of Heather and Gary Cohen, 19 Moorecroft Rd., on the first night of Sukkot, Monday, October 12 at 6:15 p.m. The evening will feature a short Sukkot service, a children's program led by Michal and Yossi Bouchris, refreshments, and song.

Those interested in information regarding parlor-meetings, holiday and Sabbath services, or Sukkot celebrations, may call the office at 232-3501, or 235-4168.

The Almost Meeting and Other Stories
By Henry Kreisel
NeWest Press, Edmonton,
Cloth, $12.95
Interview and Book Review by Sharon Drache

"Can one really change one's language as if it were a shirt?"

This is the question Henry Kreisel asked himself at the age of 17, sitting on a straw mattress (the only place available for quiet thought) in a crowded barracks in Pontefract, Yorkshire. Kreisel, an Austrian refugee who fled the Anschluss of 1938 suddenly found himself an "enemy alien," in 1940. A few weeks later he began a two year incarceration in internment camp mostly in Quebec and New Brunswick.

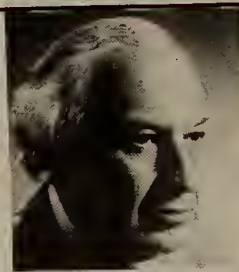

Looking back, Kreisel realizes a number of experiences during those years of confinement enabled him to make a double commitment, to write fiction and to write in English.

It was quite a struggle for young Kreisel, having just lost his country, to take on the challenge of writing in a language other than his mother tongue. The result of the discipline was the development of a meticulous prose style marked by a delicate balance of alienation and affirmation. But as meticulous as the style is, there is passion, as if carefully chosen words could explode were they not harnessed by the author's arrangement.

The Almost Meeting and Other Stories, a collection of eight highly diversified short stories written from 1954 to 1980, have previously been published in Canadian Literary magazines and broadcast on the CBC. Some of these stories have been anthologized, some have been translated into Italian and German and one story, "Travelling Nude," published first in Prism, was awarded the President's Medal of the University of Western Ontario for the best Canadian short story of 1959. Personally, "Travelling Nude," is one of the funniest stories I have ever read. Set in mythical Albertan towns Great Fish Lake, Three Bear Hills, Pollux and Castor, the idiosyncrasies of the townspeople wax majestic with the controlled and able pen of Kreisel, an immigrant son, who has made Edmonton his home since the 1950's.

Of the eight stories in his collection, two have specifically Jewish themes.

The first, "Chassidic Song," is a classic, dealing with the all too familiar head on collision of secular and orthodox. As only chance (or Divine intervention) can have it, an English professor, on his way to a conference on James Joyce, finds himself seated next to a Chassid, on a plane winging them both from Montreal to New York. "Black-cattened, black hatted figures...one, two, five, ten. Surrounded, thought Arnold Weiss, on all sides. He shifted in his seat. "Yet, within minutes of take-off, it is Arnold Weiss who strikes up conversation with his neighbor. "Are you going to a Farbrengen?" The mere utterance of the sacred word is reason for the Chassid, Josef Shemtov, to feel he has the right to question the professor. Though Weiss resents the questions, he is not rude. In fact, the story deals essentially with Weiss' patience with the Chassid, who, as expected, is as patient as his religious commitment will permit him to be.

The other Jewish story, "The Homecoming," a complicated Holocaust reminiscence in three parts is the longest story in the book. In the first section, a young Jewish survivor, hopeful of being reunited with his family, is making his way on foot through the Polish countryside to his hometown, Narodnowa. Mordecai Drimmer meets a Polish peasant who, not realizing Drimmer is Jewish, says, "And now there are not many Jews left in the country because the Germans killed and gassed them and burned them to death. And that is the only good thing the Germans have done." When the peasant finds out Drimmer is a Jewish survivor, he hisses, "If you really are a Jew, I'm not afraid of you. Only I'm sorry you are still alive."

In the second part of this fictional memoir Drimmer reaches Narodnowa in a state of fever and exhaustion. By the time he arrives at the gutted structure which was once his home he is so overwrought that he lashes out against an innocent dog. "In his misery, he wanted no witnesses, not even a dog."

Amid the squalor and dilapidation, Drimmer meets a young widow. She tells him that his uncle is still alive and has returned. But when he asks about his parents and his sister, the widow can only answer, "They have not come back."

In the third section, the survivor suffers a raging fever for five days. Only when Drimmer recovers can he finally begin to consider the possibilities of the future.

Kreisel, with an extraordinary degree of artistic control has given a unique aesthetic account in "The Homecoming."

Henry Kreisel, is currently Chairman of the Department of Comparative Literature at the University of Edmonton. His reputation in Canadian Letters was firmly established by his two highly acclaimed novels, The Rich Man, (McClelland and Stewart, 1948) and The Betrayal (McClelland and Stewart, 1964). Both novels are available in New Canadian Library series, (paper).

In short, the present collection, The Almost Meeting and Other Stories is an opportunity to meet the distinguished author, once again.

View from the Pulpit

But Do We Listen?

by Rabbi Dr. Basil Herring

Congregation Beth Shalom

I recently saw an ad placed by a large corporation that started by saying, "We teach people how to listen!" How true — for while we might know how to hear, and we hear thousands of things every day, listening is a special art that few of us possess. Parents complain that "my son doesn't listen to me." Children are heard to say, "when I talk to my parents, they just don't understand." Even husbands and wives sometimes exchange conversation, but have not the faintest idea what the other is trying to say. From childhood and up we are taught to express ourselves, to talk clearly, and to give our opinions — but very few ever learn how to listen and understand.

During the High Holidays, we read the dramatic story of the Binding of Isaac, and in it there is the only recorded conversation between Abraham and his son Isaac. Isaac, seeing all the paraphernalia of sacrifice, asks where the lamb might be — and Abraham tells him that God will provide one for himself. What a strange dialogue! Could that father and son not communicate more honestly with each other? Did Abraham really think he could fool Isaac? The midrash answers that Isaac was not fooled at all, neither did Abraham intend to mislead him. Isaac understood implicitly that he was to be the sacrifice, and that Abraham was merely saying that just as God provides, so he withholds — whether it be worldly goods, sustenance, or life itself. And because of Abraham's honesty and Isaac's ability to listen and understand his father's real meaning, the two of them were united and became endeared to each other, even as they proceeded together to do the terrible will of God.

What a sublime lesson for parents and children of all ages! If only we could learn to listen to each other, to detect the love and affection hidden behind the sometimes harsh words or obstinate ears!

And if we have such a difficult time listening to each other — how can we possibly hear the word of God? If we are so pre-occupied with our own thoughts and pronouncements from the cradle to the grave, is it any wonder that too often our ears are impervious to the divine music that fills the universe? If it takes a special effort to hear what those closest to us are trying to say, do we not need to make at least a serious effort to be sensitive to God's word as expressed in the Torah and in the nature that surrounds us?

Let us therefore, take some time out from our busy schedules over this Holiday season, to listen instead of to talk, to understand instead of to simply hear sounds. Let us listen to our loved ones and to our fellows, to understand what they might be trying to tell us; and let us pause to hear the voice of God, as echoed in the traditions and ways of our people, as they reverberate down through the ages from Abraham and Isaac to our own day.

If this will be our resolve, I am sure that as we will hear God's commanding voice, so He will in turn hear our voices raised in prayer, crying out for an answer. For as Abraham said to Isaac on that fateful morning, the ultimate truth is that it is God who will provide — giving us life and well-being, understanding and contentment in the coming New Year.

Bond Club is perfect gift

A dramatic and effective way of linking new generations now growing up, with Israel, is through the Israel Bond Club. Gifts to Bar Mitzvah and Bat Mitzvah celebrants, to newborn children and grandchildren, to all celebrants of simchas may be made through the Israel Bond Club.

A beautiful card, acknowledging the gift, is sent to the honored person, and when sufficient funds have been accumulated, the he or she is presented with an Israel Bond.

The Israel Bond Club will be co-chaired by Miriam Goldstein and Myra Presser, it was announced by Myrna Potechin, Chairman of the Israel Bonds Women's Division.

In making the appointments, Mrs. Potechin recalled her own experience last year when her daughter Sharman was a Bat Mitzvah.

The invitation to the Bat Mitzvah was accompanied by a note from Sharman requesting that in lieu of gifts, a contribution be made to the Israel Bond Club. Following the Bat Mitzvah, Sharman was presented with more than $1,000 in Israel Bonds. She is planning to use the Bonds for a future trip to Israel.

Mrs. Goldstein and Mrs. Presser hope that many more parents and children will register with the Israel Bond Club and thereby have a meaningful, and useful, gift presented to mark the simcha.

Gifts in any amount may be sent to the Israel Bond office at 168 Charlotte Street, Suite 504, or by telephoning 236-7139.

Bonds build Israel — 30 years of progress

Some of the major advances in Israel's economy during the past 30 years were made with the help of Israel Bond funds. Following is a year-by-year account of projects developed with the aid of Israel Bonds:

- 1951 — Expansion of the deep-water port at Haifa and construction of a new harbour at the mouth of the Kishon River.
- 1952 — New installations built on the shores of the Dead Sea to help develop the basis for a large-scale chemical fertilizer industry.
- 1953 — Construction of the road from Beersheba to Sdom.
- 1954 — Construction of a facility for the extraction of copper cement north of Eilat.
- 1955 — Construction of the National Water Carrier is launched.
- 1956 — Eilat's port is expanded.
- 1957 — An eight-inch pipeline is laid from Eilat to Beersheba, subsequently replaced with a 16-inch pipeline and extended to Ashkelon.
- 1958 — A new highway links Eilat with Beersheba through the Arava.
- 1959 — An oil terminal is built in Tel Aviv, along with six-inch pipeline connecting it to the Haifa refineries.
- 1960 — Dimona, populated largely by new immigrants, becomes the centre of a large-scale textile industry and a large nuclear research centre.
- 1961 — The development town of Ashdod becomes the nucleus of a new deep-water port needed as overseas trade grows.
- 1962 — The city of Arad is founded in the heart of the Negev, east of Beersheba.
- 1963 — A water desalination plant is built in Eilat.
- 1964 — Carmiel, the first Jewish settlement in the Western Galilee, rises and develops into a large industrial zone.
- 1965 — The Beersheba-Dimona railroad extension is completed; off-loading facilities for Dead Sea products are constructed.
- 1966 — Efforts to develop export potential result in a concentration of sophisticated, science-based industries, particularly in electronics.
- 1967 — Expansion of the petro-chemical industry is financed by Israel Bonds.
- 1968 — A major power station is constructed at Ashdod.
- 1969 — Expanded exploitation of the phosphate fields at Oron becomes the economic basis for the establishment of chemical industries at Arad.
- 1970 — Construction begins on a second oil refinery (now completed), in Ashdod, capable of processing four million tons of petroleum annually.
- 1971 — El Al becomes one of the first international airlines to introduce the Boeing 747 into transatlantic service.
- 1972 — A satellite ground station is put into operation in the Valley of Elah.
- 1973 — Despite the surprise Yom Kippur War attack, the economy is able to demonstrate its resiliency and maintain near-normal civilian life.

- 1974 — Recovery from the war begins with construction of a large container facility at the Kishon Harbour.
- 1975 — A new section of the expanded oil tank storage farm, at the southern terminal of the oil pipeline in Eilat, is dedicated. Construction of a new section of the railroad to Nahal Zin, where extensive phosphate fields were discovered, is inaugurated.
- 1976 — The large industrial park at Tefen in central Galilee is launched.
- 1977 — The huge 1,400 kw power station at Hadera is inaugurated.
- 1978 — The Jerusalem-Tel Aviv highway is dedicated.
- 1979 — The Israel-Egypt peace treaty makes necessary redeployment and resettlement in the Negev. Israel Bonds accept part of the responsibility of helping to develop the Negev.
- 1980 — The Bond campaign helps Israel face problems arising from a crushing oil bill as a result of giving up the Sinai oil fields.
- 1981 — Israel Bonds undertakes to provide seed money for the projected Mediterranean-to-Dead Sea energy project which will eventually supply up to 15 per cent of the country's energy needs.

Singles hear about taxes

The Temple Israel Singles Forum will hold its next meeting on Thursday, October 22, at 8 p.m., at 1301 Prince of Wales Drive. Guest speaker Sidney Goldstein will address the group on "Tax Shelters — Tax Planning for the Middle Class".

Discussion will be followed by wine and cheese. A small charge will be levied at the door.

For further information contact Robin Fund at 836-4648, or Harry Gross at 733-7989.

School busy at holidays

The Talmud Torah Afternoon School began its school year on Sunday, September 20. The children arrived with smiling faces ready to start a new year of learning. Students are busy preparing for the Yamin Noraim — the High Holy Days.

Special treats of apples and honey were distributed for Rosh Hashanah and the students are looking forward to special in-Sukkah activities.

Prime Minister Begin
PM is given
$100M pledge
by "Founders"

A commitment to provide $100 million in seed money for the Mediterranean to Dead Sea Canal energy project was given to Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel at an Israel Bond "Canal Founders" Luncheon in New York during his visit to the United States.

The luncheon, which was attended by 350 Bond leaders from the United States, Canada and a number of countries abroad was the major event of an all-day international conference of "Canal Founders".

In his address, Prime Minister Begin expressed his gratitude on behalf of the State of Israel for the Bond proceeds provided thus far for the canal and envisioned its completion by the end of this decade.

He said: "Imagine, eight years from now, we can all be witnesses at the scene. We come to the Dead Sea. With our modern technology, a button is pushed by whoever is the President or Prime Minister of Israel. Suddenly, the waters of the Mediterranean come rushing with a thunder, falling 395 meters down."

"Then a second button is pushed. There is light all over, electric light. And the vision of Herzl is fulfilled. Imagine that moment. 'Ma'ase B'reishit', another deed of Genesis. 'Vayehi Or', and there was light."

The Prime Minister continued: "Will it not be a moment of the greatest happiness of our lives? We who helped build, we who invested in it? Isn't it worthwhile to labor for it, to dream about it and then see the dream come true?"

He concluded, "Please continue investing in this great and historic project, in the vision of Herzl and its realization."

Sam Rothberg, General Chairman of Israel Bonds, opened the luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria by declaring: "The Canal project is a keystone of Israel's search for new sources of energy. The commitment undertaken by the Bond Organization to provide seed money in the amount of $100 million represents an obligation of the highest priority."

He continued: "In its present situation, Israel does not have the financial resources to launch the building of the canal. Outside capital is the only answer and Israel Bonds is taking the initiative to show prospective investors the way."

New Year's Greetings from Jerusalem

by Menachem Begin

We stand on the threshold of the New Year 5742 with hope and belief that our people's ancient great human values will endure and triumph over the transient material considerations provided by oil these days. We are a small nation and we know our place in the world. We know what we can offer mankind. We also know the role we can and do play in the middle east.

The region in which we live and its periphery is now in turmoil. In Iran we have seen civilization itself endangered by the emergence of dark forces that have trampled under-foot the time-honored customs and traditions of international cooperation. We have seen the power of petro-dollars reduce even some democratic states to subservience and capitulation.

This is a disturbing development for the shrinking free democratic world. We must stand together in the face of the Soviet thrust into the four corners of the globe for control of strategic and material assets. After Angola and Mozambique, Ethiopia and South Yemen, Vietnam and Cambodia it would be foolhardy to ignore the implications of their operations in Afghanistan, as a result of which the Soviet army could reach the Indian Ocean through Baluchistan. The whole free world is in danger, liberty itself is in peril.

For our part we have done all in our power to advance the cause of peace in our region. We faithfully carried into effect every commitment that we undertook in the Peace Treaty with Egypt. We have made great sacrifices for peace — an ideal which is not easily obtainable and, therefore, we must pursue it with determination and patience.

We have the profound satisfaction that it was we who originally proposed autonomy for the Arab inhabitants of Judea, Samaria and the Gaza District. Few have stated and reiterated our readiness to fulfill the letter and spirit of the second part of the Camp David Agreement, dealing with this autonomy, and not to deviate from it by one iota. We are in no way responsible for the periodic interruptions and suspensions of the negotiations. They are now renewed, let us hope an agreement on the outstanding issues will be reached.

As usual there was criticism of our reaffirmation of an existing truth that Jerusalem is united, the capital of our state, an invisible city with complete freedom of access to the holy shrines of all religion guaranteed by law for all time. Any proposal which may either directly or indirectly bring about the redrawing or repartition of Jerusalem will be rejected by all our people, for we stand by the unity of Jerusalem for ever and ever.

From this city, eternal yerushalayim, I send you, my dear brethren and sisters. Greetings for a Happy New Year 5742. With God's help may it be a year of continuing advance towards peace, a year of improvement in the economic situation of our country and its individual citizens, a year of growing aliya from the east and the west to the land of our forefathers.

May this Rosh Hashanah usher in a year of happiness and freedom, strength, security and dignity for all the House of Israel.

Shana Tova Lechol Beit Israel.

Israel Bonds for the inter-seas energy project in addition to their regular Bond purchases. Approximately 450 "Founders" have thus far been enrolled in the effort to enlist 1,000 participants in the program.

The 67-mile inter-seas conduit is expected to cost $800 million based on the January, 1980 value of the dollar, Prime Minister Begin participated in a canal dedication ceremony at Har Yair near Masada at the eastern terminus of the project on May 28. The project, which is expected to be completed at the end of the decade, had been approved several months earlier by the Israel Cabinet.

The canal project, which has been called the largest and most important economic undertaking by Israel since the establishment of the state, consists of a pipeline, a canal and a tunnel. Gravitational flow will be exploited to send Mediterranean Sea water plunging 1,500 feet down to the levels of the Dead Sea, the lowest point on earth.

In many ways, the project is similar in scope and engineering structure but on a much larger scale to the National Water Carrier, which was financed in the 1960's in large part with Israel Bond proceeds. The water carrier made it possible for Israel to bring water for irrigation to the Negev and helped the country achieve self-sufficiency in agriculture.

Other benefits envisioned by canal planners include: desalinated water to irrigate new areas in the Negev; the creation of artificial recreational lakes and the growth of related hotels and tourist industries; the development of fisheries, agricultural projects, and establishment of chemical and other industries.

Now marking its 30th Anniversary Year, the Israel Bond program has been the principal source for mobilizing investment capital for Israel and has provided more than $5.3 billion for Israel's Development Budget.

Message from the President

Historical Society launches a city-wide membership campaign

In 1966 a group of gentlemen aware of the need to preserve the history of the Jewish community met at the invitation of the late Max Bookman to found the Ottawa Jewish Historical Society.

Under the chairmanship of Michael Freedman, the society became activated and in 1972 a serious archives preservation program was started. The collection of historical manuscripts, family, synagogue and organization records was undertaken. This was followed by the initiation of an oral history program.

An encouraging Vaad Ha'Ir provided space for this historical material at the Jewish Community Centre and a group of dedicated volunteers became interested in the task. With the passing of Michael Freedman, M. Sidney Green became the new chairman. He formed the History and Archives Committee, a group of volunteers that worked to arrange and catalogue all the materials collected.

Special facilities are needed to properly store and preserve archives. In 1974, space was provided by the Public Archives of Canada for our accumulated papers, and the bulk of the collection moved to the Wellington Street building.

In recent years the society has been providing increasing and necessary services to academics in search of information on various disciplines. This is beneficial to both the society and the student. As the organization makes its holdings available to the student, it gleans access to additional information unearthed by a determined researcher. Through the work of a Carleton University graduate, a detailed architectural history of Ottawa's first synagogue has recently been added to our archives.

Exhibitions arranged by the members of the society have provided an awareness and appreciation of our local Jewish heritage. Talks and slide presentations produced from the information in our collections are provided freely to schools and organizations, and demonstrate the commitment of the society to nurture an appreciation of our precious past.

Federal support of the multicultural programs has provided some funding for special projects undertaken by the OJHS. Consistent support of our program has been maintained by the Vaad Ha'Ir. We are grateful to them and to the Harold Shaffer Endowment Fund, which has named the society as its beneficiary for the past two years.

The OJHS holds quarterly meetings at which it endeavours to provide interesting speakers for the enjoyment of its members. The entire membership enjoys the opportunity to meet socially at these times.

The continuation of the project to preserve our local Jewish history is a difficult but fulfilling task. Our volunteers have worked with dedication and need the interest, aid and support of many people, including yours and that of other members.

I want to thank all those who have assisted us in our efforts to preserve the story of the Jewish experience in Ottawa. The Society needs you now — your time, your efforts, — and yes, your money to achieve our goals. Without your assistance we will fail.

Please become involved. Become a member. If you can, become an active member. Annual membership in the OJHS is only $10.00. Attend our meetings, assist in our research for material, inform others of our existence and contribute what you can. The continuity of our program rests on all our shoulders.

Honour Maccabiah Medal Winners

Joseph Lieff, President of the Jewish Community Council, presented Citations of Merit to Bill Holzman and Michael Zunder at a meeting of the Board of Trustees on September 23. Bill won a silver and a bronze for golf. Michael won a silver in the 400 metre hurdles. Their responses follow.

Michael Zunder

I'd like to thank the staff of the Jewish Community Council for taking such interest in Billy and myself over the past few months. It has been an unforgettable experience travelling to Israel as part of the Maccabiah team representing Canada.

To compete at an international level can only be achieved after many years of long and intensive training. As a result I'd like to take this opportunity to offer my assistance to any young Ottawa Jewish athlete striving for a position on the Canadian team in 1985.

At this point, I'd like to thank the most important people in my life: my mother and father; for putting up with me throughout the years and for all the support they've given me.

The memories of the Jewish homeland will always be a part of me — and you — the members of the Vaad, honouring Billy and myself tonight, can only add to my pleasant memories of the 11th Maccabiah.

Bill Holzman

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for their support shown to myself and my teammates. It is a fantastic honour to be chosen to represent your country in an international competition, especially the Jewish Games in Israel. It is also a great thrill to compete and return home with medals to show for your achievements. But the biggest lift of all comes from being presented with the Citation of Merit by your own community who without them, we could never even participate in such competitions.

Without the hours of work and financial contributions from the Jewish communities, we wouldn't have the opportunity to be a part in such a heart-warming and moving spectacle.

Thank you all very much.

Pure Hate

Clearly indicative of the anti-Jewish passion the Kremlin seeks to stir up is this cartoon printed on the front page of Peretz, the Ukrainian "humor" magazine, and obtained by the Student Struggle for Soviet Jewry. It shows a Streicher-like Jewish figure, along with a gun-toting Nazi, under a harness bedecked with a Star of David and dollar signs. They are pulling (not seen) a garbage cart labelled "anti-Sovietism" and "Cold War".

Canadian Society for Weizmann Institute of Science is set up

The first meeting of the newly established Ottawa Chapter of the Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute of Science convened on Thursday, September 10, at the Institute's new office at 56 Sparks Street, Suite 403.

Charles Dalfen, Chapter President, stated the Ottawa Chapter is very fortunate in having been able to fill its executive with so many distinguished members of the Ottawa community. These are:

Advisory Council: Dr. H.J. Bernstein, Lawrence Freiman, Dr. Gerhard Herzberg, Dr. Larkin Kerwin, Dr. Erwin Koranyi, Dr. B.B. Migicovsky, I.C. Pollack, Louis Rasminsky, Hon. John Roberts, Hyman Soloway, G. Hamilton Southam, Zeev Vered, D.A. Golden, Chairman.

Officers: President: Charles Dalfen. Vice Presidents: Ruth Berger, John Greenberg. Treasurer: Arthur Drache. Secretary: Kaysa Friedman.

Programming Committee Co-Chairman: Dr. Agnes Klein, Dr. B.B. Migicovsky, Dr. Eli Rabin.

Members and their affiliation: Dr. George Marcus — Department of Agriculture, Dr. Sol Gunner — Department of Health & Welfare, Dr. Shier Berman — National Research Council, Dr. Joseph Wolfson — Carleton University, Dr. John Cowan — University of Ottawa, Dr.

Charles Dalfen

Lewis Slotin — Ministry of State for Science and Technology.

The Canadian Society for the Weizmann Institute was initiated in 1966 by Meyer Weisgal, late President and Chancellor of The Weizmann Institute, and a close associate and disciple of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, and is one of 17 such committees around the world. The Canadian Society's first major project was the establishment of a Chair in honour of the late Lester Pearson.

One of its major exchange programs is between the Kofler Accelerator in Rehovot and the TRIUMF Accelerator in Vancouver. These exchanges have been going on for the past three and a half years.

In addition to Career Development Chairs and scholarship aid, the Canadian Society has established 11 major Professorial Chairs, the most recent being the Chief Justice Bora Laskin Chair in Science Teaching. The Dinner honouring Chief Justice Laskin was the Canadian Society's first National Testimonial Dinner and was held in Ottawa this past summer. The Dinner was organized in Ottawa and was the springboard for the initiation of an Ottawa Chapter of the Canadian Society.

In addition to its responsibilities in the field of fundraising, scientific exchanges and arranging lecture series, the Ottawa Chapter, by virtue of being in the nation's capital, will have the additional responsibility of establishing a liaison between the Weizmann Institute in Rehovot and the Canadian government.

As part of its programming, the new chapter is pleased to announce two lectures to be delivered by Professor Moshe Feldman, Director of the Dobrin Center for Nutrition and Plant Research at the Weizmann Institute.

On Wednesday, October 28, he will deliver a technical lecture at the Department of Agriculture. On Thursday, October 29, Professor Feldman will deliver a community lecture, "New Strategies for Food Production: Unconventional Genetic Approaches for Wheat Improvement". The community lecture is being co-sponsored by the University of Ottawa and will take place in the Auditorium of Colonel By Hall at the University of Ottawa at 8 p.m. Admission is free. There will be no solicitation of funds. A reception to meet Professor Feldman will follow the lecture.

Anyone interested in obtaining more information on the Weizmann Institute, its local chapter and/or the Feldman lectures is invited to call Ann Goldberg, Manager of the Ottawa office for the Weizmann Institute at 236-3391.

ПРАЗДНИЧНЫЕ ПОЗДРАВЛЕНИЯ

Again this year, the Soviet Jewry Committee of the Jewish Community Council of Ottawa has organized a mailing campaign to send holiday greetings to hundreds of Jewish families who have been refused permission to leave the U.S.S.R. Designed by Ottawa artist Sonia Pearl, the card features a magnificent "Tree of Life" design. Inside there is a Calendar of Jewish Holidays printed in Russian, a Russian-Hebrew alphabet, and this message: "Holiday Greetings to you and your family from your brothers and sisters in Canada." Thousands of these cards have been sent from a wide spectrum of Jewish organizations in Ottawa to tell the "Refuseniks" that their Jewish brethren in Ottawa have not forgotten them.

ALL IN THE FAMILY

This man almost lost his hand in a terrorist bombing. The people who are treating him aren't strangers. Because he's a patient at Shaare Zedek, Israel's "hospital with a heart." And at Shaare Zedek, everyone is family.

Why not have your family join our family?

You can do it, with a special family endowment plan. You'll be helping one of Israel's most important hospitals.

Best of all, you'll be showing this man—and others like him—that he's part of an even bigger family than he ever imagined.

Think about a family endowment plan at Shaare Zedek—then give us a call and ask for the details.

We'll be glad to welcome you into our family.

Lowy Collection open at National Library

By Gay Applebaum
After much preparation, the National Library of Canada has opened the largest exhibition of Hebraica and Judaica in Canadian history. Some 150 works from the Lowy Collection are on display daily from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the National Library, 395 Wellington Street, until January 10, 1982.

The Lowy Collection contains several thousand volumes of rare printed books, both theological and secular, from the 15th century beginnings of the printing press through five centuries and spanning five continents.

It was presented by Montreal industrialist Jacob M. Lowy as a gift to the Crown in 1977, the largest donation ever made to the Library. Regarded as one of the five ranking collections held in any public institution in North America, it is particularly noteworthy because of its invaluable incunabula. This is one of the largest showings of Hebrew incunabula yet held in North America.

Incunabula are those books printed in the years between 1455 and 1500. Works published after 1500 are considered rare books, not incunabula.

Among the 30 incunabula on display are a wide range of subject matter and other languages (Hebrew is the main language used in the Lowy incunabula). The oldest printed book in the Library, the works of Josephus (1470) in Latin is shown, as is a first edition of Maimonides Legal Code (1481) the first Hebrew book published in Rome.

Many of the Hebrew incunabula were published in Italy which was to remain the major Hebrew publishing centre for several centuries.

There are several secular Hebrew incunabula including the first printed book of Hebrew poetry (1491) and the well-known medical tract by Avicenna (1492).

The Library has restored its sole fragment from a Spanish Hebrew work dated 1490, the last known edition printed before the Jewish expulsion 2 years later. Spain had been a major Hebrew publishing centre but all works are now lost or destroyed. No Hebrew incunabula from Spain exists today in its entirety.

All three important 15th century printers, Estienne in Paris, Plantin in Antwerp and Froben in Basel are represented.

Many rabbinic works including codes and responsa, printed after 1500, are also in the exhibition. Alongside these books are works by such Jewish philosophers as Spinoza and Moses Mendelssohn, whose thoughts clashed with orthodox thinking.

Of special interest are books in Judaic languages. They have Hebrew type but are actually written in the language spoken in that region (that is they look like Hebrew because of the use of Hebrew characters, but in fact are in Italian, Greek, Turkish, French or Tatar.)

The oldest example of

printed music in the Library, a Hebrew biblical cantillation (1524) is included. The music reads from right to left.

Among many rare items are some censored works from the 16th century and also from this century's Nazi suppression. In a few instances the censor's ink has faded, allowing the type to show through once more.

The curator of the Lowy Collection, Brad Sabin Hill, who is responsible for the "almost awesome" task of mounting the exhibition speaks with pride about the collection.

Previously the National Library housed a number of other collections of Hebraic manuscripts and manuscripts on microfilm and microfiche. A few of these items are on display in this exhibit along with a few works from the Rare Books and Manuscripts division of the Library.

Canada's National Library, one of the world's youngest, was the only one without a collection of rare printed Hebraica. "It was fortunate and opportune for the Lowy Collection to come here... It was lucky for them, lucky for Mr. Lowy that the matchmaking went off as well as it did", Hill says.

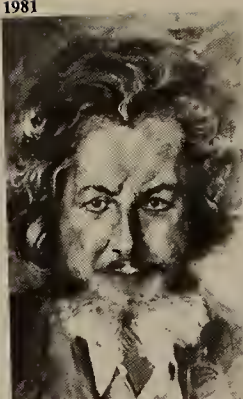

Only the National Library offered to maintain the collection in a security and environmentally controlled separate room. Hill's 1979 appointment as curator ensured that the collection would be conserved, restored and developed as Lowy had envisioned it.

"It's the hope... that individuals, in Canada particularly, who have collections of rare Hebraica will add, through the years, to our holdings", Hill adds.

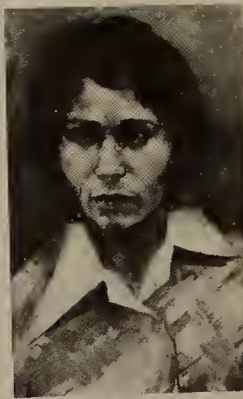

A uniquely trilingual illustrated catalogue, the first rare Hebraica bibliography to be published in North America, is currently at press. It will be officially introduced at a ceremony honouring Lowy in November.

A pre-publication catalogue will help the layman identify the works in the exhibition's 22 cases. Hill will conduct pre-arranged tours through the exhibition, which is likely to attract scholars from many centres. For those whose interest has been sufficiently aroused by the exhibit, he will arrange a tour of the full collection in the Library's secluded Lowy room.

The main exhibition hall will remain open seven days a week, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Vladimir Slepak

Avital Shcharansky

Anatoly Shcharansky

Ottawa artist paints portraits of the Iron Curtain refuseniks

To most people, the plight of Soviet Jews in captivity represents a continuation of the darker side of Jewish history, the continuing struggle for basic rights of religious freedom.

To Ottawa artist Patrick Roy Haldorsen, his portraits of refuseniks Anatoly Shcharansky, Avital Shcharansky and Vladimir Slepak tell a different story depicting more personal qualities of the "heroes" themselves.

There are common bonds, however. The artist claims, after long hours of research, that each and every refusenik knew exactly what they were getting into. "Anatoly Shcharansky" he claims, "just wanted to leave Russia." "They wouldn't let him and when he persisted they incarcerated him." His story is one of devotion and determination. Haldorsen has painted Anatoly's portrait specifically for Avital.

"Avital represents 'wasted beauty' — a woman longing to live a simple life and raise a family in Israel — a woman destined to spend her life coming through complex political channels across the continents." The artist has painted the beautiful Avital in bright blue and earmarks her portrait for Anatoly in his cell.

With Vladimir Slepak's portrait, Haldorsen has spent considerably more time in conception and execution. He has painted Slepak for the Jewish people. "His virtue" the artist claims, "is the most important of all — that of loyalty."

Slepak, as the "father" of the refusenik movement, was always in a position to co-operate with Soviet officials. In exchange for information he could have received a light sentence and his freedom. "He never co-operated" and is paying the price. The artist wants this very special portrait to hang in the Israel Museum in Jerusalem.

This is not Haldorsen's first documentation of a people in plight. Having grown up in Northern Ontario, living close to native peoples, he has painted many portraits and scenes of native life.

Mr. Haldorsen served for 31 years as a Secretary of State artist with the National Museums of Canada. He painted and sculpted the Native Peoples' Contributions to European Culture c. 1400 (1947), the Iroquois Meeting of the Five Nations' Chiefs in 1441 near Williamstown, New York, representing the first "League of Nations" as we know it (Museum of Man), the D-Day Landing diorama in the National War Museum and the Indian and Native People's scenes in Car 5 of the Discovery Train.

In addition, having spent 6 years overseas during WW II, and studying briefly with Augustus John at the Epsom School of Fine Art in Surrey and at Balfour Fine Arts, Oxford, during leaves, he witnessed first hand the universal struggle for freedom.

Now retired, Haldorsen paints what he likes. It is his hope to acquire sufficient pictorial documentation of Ida Nudel and paint her portrait as well.

These portraits can be viewed by contacting Mina's Art Investments, 798 Bank Street.

Arab Terrorists murder Jews in Vienna as they daven on Shabbat

A 68-year-old Austrian Jew, Nathan Fried, who had managed to escape the clutches of the Nazis in the European Holocaust, was one of those killed in an attack by Arab terrorists upon a crowd of synagogue worshippers in Vienna on the Sabbath day, 29 August. Also killed was Mrs. Ulrike Kohot, 25; 19 others were wounded, including three children. The two terrorists who committed the deed were apprehended by local police.

PLO and World Terror

The danger inherent in the PLO's terrorist activity is not limited to the State of Israel and the Jewish people. In effect, the PLO has in recent years become the kinglypin of international terror — a source and provider of training facilities, technical advice, financing, operational assistance and general support for terrorist organizations all over the world. As such, the PLO serves today as the operational focus of the entire international terrorist network, now recognized as menacing the very foundations of Western civilization.

Against this background, it is indeed difficult to understand the Western nations' tolerant attitude towards the PLO. The record shows that those states whose governments assumed that a pro-PLO policy would render them immune to PLO terror sooner or later experienced a rude awakening. From the beginning of 1978 until today, 24 acts of terror have been perpetrated in over 20 countries in four continents, either by the PLO directly or by other terrorist groups working together with the PLO. In these actions, 62 innocent persons — men, women and children — have been killed, and 212 others wounded.

A relentless battle, by the nations of the world, to uproot the PLO would thus appear to be, more than anything else, an act of simple self-preservation — and surely the Western democracies, which are the prime target of these terror organizations, ought to stand in the forefront of the fight.

The Antisemitic Factor

This latest terrorist outrage — this time directed against a Jewish non-Israeli, target and, to top it off, on the holy Sabbath — once again demonstrates the PLO's vicious antisemitic character, wilfully and cynically casting aside all restraints generally accepted among cultured societies. With this act, the PLO has proved once again that it scorns the universal ethical values that proscribe assaults on innocent people while at prayer in a holy place on a holy day.

The Vienna attack is by no means the first such assault carried out by the PLO against Jews as Jews. Here is a partial list of earlier incidents:

28 August 1973

Terrorists commandeered a train carrying Jewish emigrants from the Soviet

The body of one of the two Jews slain in the attack on the Vienna synagogue is carried to the cemetery.

Huge crowds gather in horror outside the synagogue after the brutal surprise attack by terrorists on the worshippers.

Union to the Schoenau transit camp in Vienna. Three hostages seized by the terrorists were released only after the Austrian Government had undertaken to close down the Schoenau transit camp.

30 December 1973

Lord Sief, one of the leaders of British Jewry, was wounded in an attempt on his life by Arab terrorists.

27 March 1979

26 persons were wounded when a bomb exploded in a Jewish restaurant in Paris.

22 April 1979

An explosion took place in the Jewish Community Hall in Vienna. Miraculously, no one was hurt.

3 October 1979

An explosive charge went off in one of the rooms of a Buenos Aires synagogue. No casualties were incurred, but there was property damage.

27 July 1980

Several hand-grenades were thrown at a group of Jewish children in Antwerp, Belgium. One Jewish child from France and 16 other Jews were wounded in the attack.

4 October 1980

Three persons were killed and 20 wounded when a bomb exploded in front of the Copernic Street synagogue in Paris.

Special Target: Austria

Austria, perhaps more than any other European country, has over the years developed a policy friendly to the PLO. The Vienna incident of 29 August, together with other acts carried out recently on Austrian territory, offer clear proof that appeasement of the PLO and condonation of its actions will not protect a country from the tentacles of this terrorist monster. Within a very short period of time, three terrorist acts have followed one another in Austria:

* On 1 May 1981, Heinz Nitel, the President of the Austrian-Israel Friendship League was murdered.

* On 29 July, two PLO terrorists were apprehended trying to smuggle arms into Austria via the Vienna airport, with the aim of assassinating President Sadat, who had been due to visit Vienna, and of attacking Israeli and Jewish targets in the Austrian capital. The PLO representative in Vienna was in close contact with the two men, who were later permitted to leave the country.

* On 9 August, one of two explosive charges planted next to the Israel Embassy went off, wounding a local passerby.

Oct. 17 Wine and Cheese

B'nai B'rith Bytown Lodge is holding a wine and cheese party on Saturday, October 17, at 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Leibovitch, 22 Banner Road, Nepean. Couvert is $5 a couple.

Members and prospective members are invited to attend. R.S.V.P. Stuart Leibovitch 829-6645, or Marcel Van Dam 523-4393.

Congregants urged to join the Centre

On Saturday, September 19, each synagogue in Ottawa observed J.C.C. Shabbat. The message given to congregants by the Rabbi of each synagogue was clear: The J.C.C. is a valuable community agency, and congregants were encouraged to become Centre members.

Reprinted below is the text of the message delivered to his congregation by Rabbi Dr. Basil Herring at Congregation Beth Shalom.

It is hoped that presentations of the other Rabbi's speeches will follow in successive issues of the Bulletin.

In this week's Torah reading the Torah speaks of the bringing of first fruits in the time of the Temple, and in so doing it uses a rather strange expression, saying that man shall "take" unto the Lord of his first fruits. The Rabbis are bothered by this expression of taking, for it should rather have said "and you shall give," not "you shall take."

The answer they provide is one which is of most significance for the Jewish Community Centre and its affairs in the lives of our community.

The Rabbis indicated that when it came to the first fruits whatever one gave, one received back in return far more than what one had given. By giving even that little bit to God, one was expressing that one is in fact taking and receiving, but this was but a token and a pittance compared to what one had already received. If this is true of the Bikkurim, or the first fruits, it is certainly true of the Jewish Community Centre. Few of us recognise the vital role that this Institution plays in the life of Ottawa Jewry.

Every time we attend a Bar Mitzvah, or a Wedding or a Simcha, or a Kiddush in this building we are benefiting from the Jewish Community Centre.

Every time we take advantage of a Cultural Program or attend an Arts Alive or as Senior Citizens take advantage of some of the programs available, or as parents send our children to the Day Camp, and any one of the other varied activities, we are taking advantage of the Centre.

In truth there is very little justification and no reason whatsoever for anyone not to be a member of the Jewish Community Centre. For by supporting its efforts by belonging, we get much more than we give in every conceivable way. We benefit not just as a recipient and beneficiary of the physical facilities of the Centre, but of its Cultural, Educational, Religious and Social programmes as well, in a variety of locations around the City, providing for the needs of local Jews of all ages.

Cocktail reception in Solicitor-General's office

Bob Kaplan, Solicitor-General of Canada held a cocktail reception on September 21 for Dr. Adalbert Rueckerl, Head of the German Documentation Centre of Nazi War Crimes, German Government, who was in the capital. Members of the sponsoring committee of the Negev Dinner which will honour Kaplan on Tuesday, October 27 were among the invited guests. Shown with Mr. Kaplan (centre) and Dr. Rueckerl, to his left, are (from left to right), Egon Raster, Minister of the Embassy of the Federal Republic of Germany, Negev Dinner Co-ordinator Herbert Zagerman, and Chairman of the JNF Council of Ottawa, David Shore.

Study in Israel only for serious students

The Kibbutz University Semester in Israel program, conducted in cooperation with Haifa University, is open to all fulltime undergraduate students who wish to experience the unique academic experience of study in Israel while exploring the lifestyle of kibbutz. Up to 23 credit hours may be earned in the program.

This is a group program which consists of working full time on a kibbutz in the Haifa region for 8-10 weeks, and a semester of approximately 16 weeks of study in the Overseas Program of Haifa University. This program will be offered in both the Spring and Fall semesters.

Participants will work six days a week in a variety of jobs on the kibbutz and will study Hebrew, Kibbutz-related subjects and have the option of conducting research for a paper. During this period 7 credits may be earned. Students will also be able to participate in the cultural, social and educational aspects of kibbutz life.

The beautiful Haifa University campus is situated on the heights of Mount Carmel above the Mediterranean port city of Haifa. The campus is 20 minutes from the center of the city.

Haifa University boasts a faculty of more than 500 including many drawn from the finest North American and European universities. The student body numbers more than 7500.

Sixteen credits can be earned at Haifa University for on-campus studies. Participants in this unique program are personally responsible for determining whether these credits are acceptable for transfer to their North American universities.

All courses are taught in English by fulltime members of the faculty. Students are required to study the Hebrew language. Classes will be held on three levels designed to enable students to develop a degree of fluency in reading and communication in modern Hebrew. There are a variety of other courses offered, each worth three credit hours.

The Kibbutz University Semester Program is a full six months commitment. Though exciting in concept, the combination of work on kibbutz and university study is not easy. The student must be willing to make a serious commitment to work.

Applicants must be at least 18 years old and have completed at least one full term of college.
